Intellectual Property Rights in China

ZHENQING ZHANG

Covering the areas of patent, copyright, and trademark, Zhang chronicles how Chinese IPR policy has evolved within the legacy of a planned economy and an immature market mechanism. In this environment, compliance with IPR norms is the result of balancing two factors: the need for short-term economic gains that depend on violating others' IPR and the aspirations for long-term sustained growth that requires respecting others' IPR. In case studies grounded in theoretical analysis as well as interviews and fieldwork, Zhang demonstrates how advocates for IPR, typically cutting-edge Chinese companies and foreign IPR holders, can be strong enough to persuade government officials to comply with IPR norms to achieve the country's long-term economic development goals. Conversely, he reveals the ways in which local governments protect IPR infringers because of their own political interests in raising tax revenues and creating jobs.

The Criminalization of Migration

Context and Consequences

With over 240 million migrants in the world, including over 65 million forced migrants and refugees, states have turned to draconian measures to stem the flow of irregular migration, including the criminalization of migration itself. Canada, perceived as a nation of immigrants and touted as one of the most generous countries in the world today for its reception of refugees, has not been immune from these practices. This book examines "crimmigration" – the criminalization of migration – from national and comparative perspectives, drawing attention to the increasing use of criminal law measures, public policies, and practices that stigmatize or diminish the rights of forced migrants and refugees within a dominant public discourse that not only stereotypes and criminalizes but marginalizes forced migrants. Leading researchers, legal scholars, and practitioners provide in-depth analyses of theoretical concerns, legal and public policy dimensions, historic migration crises, and the current dynamics and future prospects of crimmigration.

The New Criminal Justice Thinking

EDITED BY SHARON DOLOVICH &

ALEXANDRA NATAPOFF

NEW YORK UNIVERSITY PRESS

After five decades of punitive expansion, the entire U.S. criminal justice system— mass incarceration, the War on Drugs, police practices, the treatment of juveniles and the mentally ill, glaring racial disparity, the death penalty and more — faces challenging questions. What exactly is criminal justice? How much of it is a system of law and how much is a collection of situational social practices? What roles do the Constitution and the Supreme Court play? How do race and gender shape outcomes? How does change happen, and what changes or adaptations should be pursued? The New Criminal Justice Thinking addresses the challenges of this historic moment by asking essential theoretical and practical questions about how the criminal system operates. In this thorough and thoughtful volume, scholars from across the disciplines of legal theory, sociology, criminology, Critical Race Theory, and organizational theory offer crucial insights into how the criminal system works in both theory and practice. By engaging both classic issues and new understandings, this volume offers a comprehensive framework for thinking about the modern justice system.

Who Owns the News?

A History of Copyright

You can't copyright facts, but is news a category unto itself? Without legal protection for the "ownership" of news, what incentive does a news organization have to invest in producing quality journalism that serves the public good? This book explores the intertwined histories of journalism and copyright law in the United States and Great Britain, revealing how shifts in technology, government policy, and publishing strategy have shaped the media landscape. Publishers have long sought to treat news as exclusive to protect their investments against copying or "free riding." But over the centuries, arguments about the vital role of newspapers and the need for information to circulate have made it difficult to defend property rights in news. Beginning with the earliest printed news publications and ending with the Internet, Will Slauter traces these countervailing trends, offering a fresh perspective on debates about copyright and efforts to control the flow of news.

American Justice 2018

The Shifting Supreme Court

TODD RUGER
October 2018 248pp
9780812250855 £18.99 HB
UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA PRESS

Examines the most monumental of supreme court cases—including those involving religious freedom and minority rights, partisan gerrymandering, President Trump's attempted travel ban, privacy in the digital era, the scope and power of the administrative state, and sales tax for online retailers. Ruger deftly analyzes how each of these decisions fits into the history of the court—and what the opinions and dissents reveal about the shifting ideological makeup of the institution

Criminal Trials and Mental Disorders

February 2019 384pp
9781479861644 £26.99 PB
9781479804856 £76.00 HB
NEW YORK UNIVERSITY PRESS

Identifies the various stages of criminal justice proceedings when the mental status of a defendant may be relevant, associated legal and policy issues, the history and evolution of these issues, and how they are currently resolved. To assist this exploration, the text also offers an overview of mental disorders, their relevance to proceedings, how forensic assessments are conducted and employed and their application to competency and responsibility determinations.

Enforcing Exclusion

Precarious Migrants and the Law in Canada

SARAH MARSDEN
Law and Society
August 2018 224pp
9780774837736 £69.00 HB
UBC PRESS

Through interviews with migrants and their advocates, Marsden shows that people with precarious migration status face barriers in law, affecting their ability to address adverse working conditions and their access to institutions such as hospitals and schools. Marsden questions the adequacy of human rights-based responses in addressing these forms of exclusion.

Gender, Power, and Representations of Cree Law

EMILY SNYDER
October 2018 248pp
9780774835695 £28.99 NIP
UBC PRESS

Drawing on the insights of Indigenous feminist legal theory, Emily Snyder examines representations of Cree law and gender in books, videos, graphic novels, educational websites, online lectures, and a video game. Although these resources promote the revitalization of Cree law and the principle of miyo-wícêhtowin (good relations), Snyder argues that they do not capture the complexities of gendered power relations.

Governing Irregular Migration

Bordering Culture, Labour, and Security in Spain

DAVID MOFFETTE
Law and Society
July 2018 236pp 4 tables, 1 illus.
9780774836135 £27.99 NIP
UBC PRESS

This thorough analysis of immigration governance in Spain explores the dynamics of inclusion and exclusion at play at one of Europe's southern borders. Drawing on interviews with policymakers and from parliamentary debates, laws, and policy documents, Moffette reveals the complicated legal obstacles facing migrants with precarious immigration status.

This volume introduces the concept of "grey zones" of global governance, where state policy and market behaviour interact. This exploration of local engagement with international economic law offers an innovative way to interpret public concerns about trade, sustainability, subsidies, and anti-dumping actions.

No Place on the Corner

The Costs of Aggressive Policing

JAN HALDIPUR
November 2018 224pp
9781479888009 £18.99 PB
9781479869084 £68.00 HB
NEW YORK UNIVERSITY PRESS

Through riveting interviews, Haldipur shows how a community endured aggressive policing. The title draws on three years of intensive ethnographic fieldwork in the South Bronx before and after the landmark 2013 Floyd v. City of New York decision that ruled that the NYPD's "stop and frisk" methods were a violation of rights.

Perceptions of a Polarized Court

How Division among Justices Shapes the Supreme Court's Public Image

Violence Work

State Power and the Limits of Police

MICOL SEIGEL

August 2018 312pp 13 illus.

9781478000174 £19.99 PB

9781478000020 £76.00 HB

DUKE UNIVERSITY PRESS

Offers a new theorization of the quintessential incarnation of state power: the police. Seigel redefines policing as “violence work,” showing how it is shaped by its role of channeling state violence. She traces this dynamic by examining the formation, demise, and aftermath of the U.S. State Department's Office of Public Safety (OPS), which between 1962 and 1974 specialized in training police forces internationally.
